

Re: Peer Response

by Doug Millward - Thursday, 25 August 2022, 2:57 PM

Hi Both

you have the start of a good discussion here, I would point out that in some cases Industry 4.0 is just about automation - so you don't actually need physical robots it could refer to the automation of any process - including automated responses or even automated loading and shipping facilities. Does that make any difference to your arguments? Can you see how automation could result in more or fewer risks?